

Enalia Physis Environmental Research Center

Enalia Physis Environmental Research Centre is a Cyprus-based non-profit organization established by a group of experienced scientists in 2009. Its purpose is to conduct and promote environmental research in marine and terrestrial ecosystems and to encourage and enhance education and ecological awareness of the general public. Cyprus, as the eastern Mediterranean in general, is in particular need of active NGOs who aim to become part of the decision making process of environmental policies in order to promote good environmental practices.
